EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

Stream leaders: Ronan Carbery, Thomas J. McCabe, Sándor Klein

Engaging the cognitive, affective and physical energies of employees in the pursuit of organizational goals has become an important priority for many organizations. With growing levels of research linking employee engagement and workplace performance, engagement is a topic likely to stay on the HRD agenda for the foreseeable future. Submissions to this stream may wish to consider applied research/evidence based practice on employee engagement and implications for HRD.

In particular, work showing links between employee engagement and other HRD factors such as leadership, performance management, social responsibility, work environment, culture, change, innovation, intercultural competence, progression planning, sustainability, and innovation is encouraged.
